Valley Trails

These trails stay on or near the Valley Floor. They have fewer hills, however many of them still have rugged terrain and some creek crossings. Many steep, steep these trails wet, slick and fall during wet conditions, but only mostly. Consider avoiding during excessively wet conditions for safety and sustainability.

Ridge Trails

These trails follow mountain ridges and benches and contain many steep extended gullies and water bars. The majority of them lead to the park's deeper recesses and wilderness. A rocky gravel-beds create a durable road surface even in wet conditions for most of these trails.
